

AUSTRALIAN COMMISSION ON SAFETY AND QUALITY IN HEALTH CARE

General Practice Accrediting Agencies Working Group

Terms of Reference

January 2019
TRIM: D19-2537

Preamble

General practice accreditation is voluntary in Australia and is designed to support implementation of processes and systems to improve the quality of care for patients attending accredited general practices. Accreditation is a key criterion for access to financial incentives via the Department of Health's (the Department) Practice Incentives Program (PIP).

The Royal Australian College of General Practitioners (RACGP) develops the Standards for General Practices against which practices are assessed for accreditation. The Standards seek to provide a 'framework for the continuing development of well performing practices teams to enable them to focus on quality care and risk management'. The Standards focus on practice processes aimed at supporting quality care and not direct clinical care.

The Australian Commission on Safety and Quality in Health Care (the Commission) was established as a permanent agency on 1 July 2011 and its functions are set out in Section 9 of the National Health Reform Act 2011 which include the development and coordination of national models of accreditation.

The National General Practice Accreditation Scheme (Scheme) was endorsed for implementation in May 2016. The Scheme provides support for the consistent assessment of Australian general practices against the RACGP Standards for general practices. The Commission, in collaboration with the RACGP, developed the Scheme, which commenced on 1 January 2017.

The National General Practice Accreditation Scheme includes:

1. an industry-based stakeholder committee to provide governance and oversight of the Scheme
2. an approval process for accrediting agencies to assessing general practices against the RACGP Standards for general practices
3. a data collection and reporting framework for accrediting agencies that requires the submission of de-identified accreditation outcomes.

Role of the working group

The General Practice Accrediting Agencies Working Group will assist the Commission, the RACGP and the General Practice Accreditation Coordinating Committee (the Coordinating Committee) to implement, monitor and evaluate accreditation processes under the National General Practice Accreditation Scheme.

The General Practice Accrediting Agency Working Group is an essential component of the implementation process and will:

- Identify, prioritise and provide feedback on issues relating to the implementation of the Scheme and/or the assessment of general practices against the RACGP Standards
- Discuss solutions and provide advice on possible options for addressing identified issues
- Work collaboratively with the Commission, the RACGP, the Coordinating Committee and other accrediting agencies to resolve and/or progress these issues
- Assist in the interpretation of data and information generated by the assessment of general practices
- Provide information and advice to their clients and other relevant organisations that is consistent with the Commission's, RACGP's and Coordinating Committee's position.

Function of the working group

The General Practice Accrediting Agencies Working Group will undertake the following functions:

- Identify key issues of concern for accrediting agencies and/or their clients relating to the implementation of the National General Practice Accreditation Scheme or the assessment of the RACGP Standards
- Identify, discuss and recommend actions that accrediting agencies can take to progress these issue
- Suggest actions for the Commission, the RACGP and/or the Coordinating Committee to progress issues, where relevant
- Work collaboratively with the Commission, the RACGP, the Coordinating Committee other approved accrediting agencies to implement agreed actions, processes and/or solutions
- Provide information sought by the Commission and/or the Coordinating Committee in a timely way.

General principles

The General Practice Accrediting Agencies Working Group represents accrediting agencies approved to assess general practices to the RACGP Standards.

Membership will be determined by representative nominations from approved accrediting agencies.

The Chair will be nominated by the Commission. The Commission will also provide secretariat support to the General Practice Accreditation Working Group.

The General Practice Accrediting Agencies Working Group is established as a time limited committee of the Commission.

Members of the General Practice Accrediting Agencies Working Group are appointed for two years, at which point an evaluation of the General Practice Accrediting Agencies Working Group will occur and recommendations of its future made to the Coordinating Committee and the Commission.

Feedback from the General Practice Accrediting Agencies Working Group meeting will be tabled at next scheduled Coordinating Committee meeting.

Key Responsibilities of the working group

The Chair

The Chair will be the Commission's Program Director, National Standards. The Chair has responsibility for:

- Providing leadership on matters relating to the work of the working group
